WHAT YOU WILL LEARN

This year's expanded seminar has been revamped to maximize information sharing with government speakers and experienced practitioners. More government speakers, larger facilities, and exciting new roundtable discussions will educate and challenge attendees of all experience levels. Attendees new to immigration will receive a comprehensive, practical and clear overview in virtually all areas of immigration law. Advanced attendees will learn how to incorporate the new laws and procedures into their daily practice. In addition, all attendees will learn to resolve complex matters so unique that they cannot be researched in traditional periodicals.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

This seminar is an excellent learning opportunity for immigration attorneys and staff of all levels of immigration practice. Attorneys new to immigration law or who practice immigration law part-time will benefit particularly from the Day 1 program.

WHY YOU SHOULD ATTEND

The effects of 2001 will be felt in 2002 and beyond in the form of new laws, regulations and procedures, and new attitudes. These changes affect all areas of immigration including business, family, removal and consular processing. In addition, practitioners are witnessing the planning of changes to the Immigration and Naturalization Service, Department of State, Department of Labor and the creation of the Office of Homeland Security, which will cause widespread changes to our area of law. Experienced immigration practitioners from throughout the Northwest have joined to present a comprehensive program on immigration law practice for now and the future including how these changes will impact immigrants, their representatives and employers. In addition, Board of Immigration Appeals member, the Honorable Lory D. Rosenberg, will be discussing changes at the BIA. INS-Nebraska Service Center Director, Terry Way and Lead Examiner Neil Jacobsen, will attend to discuss the Nebraska Service Center. District Directors from both Seattle and Portland will be in attendance. Martin Rios, Region VI Certifying Officer of the Department of Labor, Pat William Sanderlin from the Oregon Employment Department and Karen Walter from the Washington State Employment Security Department, David H. Lambert from the INS Seattle District, and Teresa Bobotek from the Seattle office of the U.S. Passport Agency will all participate in this outstanding program.
